

Customer WIP Design Notes - Group E

Bolded are customer notes

Unbolded underneath are reactions to the notes and how we plan to incorporate them into future iterations, if we had anything specific to add to the notes given.

-The resources tab changes were good, however the buttons should be symmetrical

The resources tab was meant to be symmetrical, but we could not figure out how to do so. Now that we have feedback about this, we will look further into making them symmetrical because we were told there should be a way to do so.

There was a way to make them uniform, we decided against it because it makes each button a full line which prevents it from fitting on one screen.

-The buttons should be the same design across the site

-There shouldn't be such a focus on donating, and there should be a help hotline re-added

We listed donating twice mainly due to it being simple to add to the menu, but we will remove one of the two donate links in the final version. The help hotline popup we used to have was good, we need to find out how to add that to wordpress or add a similar concept.

-The Support Initiatives section in the Home menu has a nice picture, but the text is hard to read. It also uses a lot of red, which can be a triggering color to some.

-Using pictures that are text is not recommended, because search algorithms will not understand that text to recommend the site to people who search similar things.
